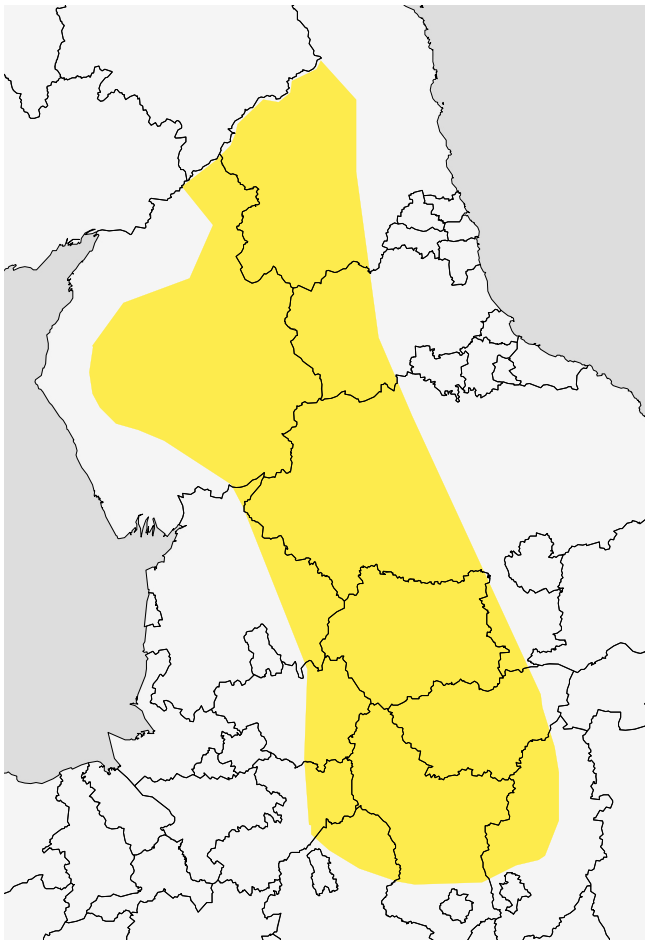
Yellow warning
Snow

Between
03:00 Mon 2 Apr 2018 and
23:59 Mon 2 Apr 2018



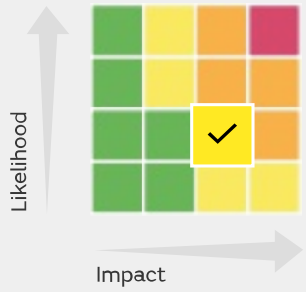
Heavy snow is expected over parts of northern England, especially for high ground.

What to expect

- There is a chance of travel delays on roads with some stranded vehicles and passengers, along with delayed or cancelled rail and air travel
- There is a small chance that some rural communities could become cut off
- There is a chance that power cuts will occur and other services, such as mobile phone coverage, may be affected

Further details

As a weather system moves in from the south and comes up against cold air over the UK, rain will turn to heavy snow, mainly on high ground. 5-10 cm of snow is expected to accumulate in places, mainly above 350 m, with a smaller chance of 2-5 cm accumulating below this, above 250 m. There is also the possibility of a couple of cm of wet snow gather locally at lower levels for a time, before snow turns back to rain. Strong winds are also expected which will likely lead to some drifting of snow on the high ground.



Low likelihood of medium impacts

The snow is likely to be affecting southern parts of the warning area in the early hours of Monday spreading to all parts later on Monday morning. Snow is likely to gradually turn to rain even on the highest ground, on Monday afternoon in the southern Pennines.

At present there is still some uncertainty in exact snow levels.

Reason for update

This warning has been updated to confine the risk of medium impacts to northern England. A separate low impact snow warning has been issued for parts of Scotland.
